

sex, drugs & rock 'n' roll? stick to the music... it's time to take control of your music career.

This two-day workshop held in May at the offices of the BPI, will explore new ways of taking control of your music career, learning how to adapt and prosper in today's music industry, covering all the key aspects of the industry, how the live scene operates as well as how to protect your work through gaining an understanding of copyright, music ownership and subsequent royalty generation. You will also explore music publishing and how to make money promoting your music.

Meet and connect with industry professionals all on hand to guide and advise.

You will leave the course with an action plan and understanding of each element relevant to a release, from ensuring the recording is of the right standard, through marketing, promotion and distribution, right up to negotiating deals and getting contracts signed.
